

Andrea Wooley is the Executive Director for the 9th Battalion, United States Military Entrance Processing Command. She has worked in this position for one year providing continuity of operations and support in personnel management. Her current role includes serving as the staff advisor to the Battalion Commander, providing workforce development opportunities, establishing priorities, oversight of Command Programs, and senior civilian management official for five Military Entrance processing stations throughout the state of Texas. Ms. Wooley is a member of the Diversity and Inclusion Committee within her agency as well as a volunteer for the Family and Readiness Group. She has over 18 years of experience in the Federal workforce and have had the privilege to work in a variety of programs throughout the Department of Army.